

Open Access and Web Application

18-01-2013

Most of the results of our project will be presented as open access publications. However, to make our results easily accessible and searchable we also work on an innovative web application. This application will help users to discover and analyse the evolution of antisemitic stereotypes and will guide them through our articles and books available online. This innovative extension of the project is possible thanks to the KNAW-fund for stimulation of the innovative open access projects.
